Community Concert Association Opens Membership Drive

Mr. Ferguson Addresses Students Monday at Chapel Service

PRICE OF SEASON TICKETS REDUCED

Speaker Mentions Need of Buying Admission to Entire Series

The second annual membership drive for the community concert association was officially opened when Mr. Robert Ferguson, Eastern manager of the organization, addressed the student body in chapel Monday morning.

Pointing out the success of last season's concerts, Mr. Ferguson announced the reduction of undergraduate tickets from $3 to the present rate of $2.50. He also explained that since the campaign for members was being conducted earlier this year it would be possible for ticket holders to attend concerts in nearby cities before the Middlebury series begin.

The first concert to be given in this vicinity will be a recital by Richard Crooks at Burlington October 12. An announcement of the three Middlebury presentations will be made in the near future.

Campaign headquarters have been established at 47 Main street where additional information concerning the association may be obtained.

Students who wish to join may secure membership cards from Student Salesmen who are canvassing the dormitories this week. No single tickets are sold for any one concert and it is therefore necessary to buy admission to the entire series.

A musicale will be offered this evening at 8 o'clock in the lounge of the inn for those interested in music and the association. There will be no admission charge.

Faculty Loses Six Members This Fall

Sabbatical Leaves, Further Study, and New Positions Responsible for Changes

Prof. John F. Haller, Mr. Lansing V. Hammond, Prof. Jean Boorsch, and Mlle. Renee Zaya have not returned to Middlebury this year.

Professor and Mrs. Haller have gone to New York to study at Columbia University for the first half of Professor Haller's sabattical year. He is studying chemistry and Mrs. Haller is taking a course in art.

Mr. Hammond is attending Harvard where he is continuing his studies in the English department.

Professor Jean Boorsch is now occupying a position as assistant professor in the graduate school of Yale university. Professor and Mrs. Boorsch recently announced the birth of a son.

Mlle. Renee Zaya, after teaching in Middlebury at the French summer school returned to France in August.

Prof. Juan A. Centano, professor of Spanish and dean of the Spanish school, is on leave during the first semester.

Prof. Philip M. Brown, who taught economics in Middlebury last year during the absence of Prof. Harry M. Fife, is now a member of the economics department at Bowdoin.

Freshman Week Of 1938 Closes Friday

Lectures, Receptions And Examinations Comprise Program For Four Days

Friday morning marked the close of freshman week for the orientation of members of the class of 1938. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were devoted to lectures, examinations, and receptions to acquaint the entering class with Middlebury.

Members of the class were allowed to take a qualifying examination in English Monday afternoon for exemption from the freshman course. All the entering students were required to report before six o'clock at the offices of the directors of admission.

The first meeting of the class as a whole took place Monday evening at the playhouse. Mr. Edgar J. Wiley, director of admissions and personnel, presided and Prof. Raymond H. White, chief adviser; discussed the curriculum. Other faculty speakers were President Paul D. Moody, Miss Jennie H. Bristol, and Prof. Perley C. Voter. Walter E. Boehm '35, president of the undergraduate association, and Virginia E. Easler '35, president of the student government association, also addressed the gathering. Singing of Middlebury songs was led by Richard W. Cushing '35. Douglas F. Reilly '36 was accompanist.

Following the mass meeting an informal reception was held at the library where the freshmen met their advisers and had an opportunity to get acquainted.

Registration began Tuesday. In addition to this the women received instruction in the use of the library while the men attended hygiene lectures

Dramatic Activities Drive To End Tomorrow Night

A canvass of the student body to sell dramatic activities tickets was begun last evening and will continue until tomorrow night.

Tickets are priced at two dollars each as in former years. These tickets admit the purchaser to all programs of one-act plays free of charge and to the three-act plays at a reduced price.

The first major production of the year will be presented in the latter part of October. The title of the play will be announced later. There will be the usual number of programs given, including several long plays and a number of experimental one-act plays directed by students.

Response to this year's activities drive has been equal to that of previous seasons. Many people have responded but the number is as yet insufficient to assure capacity audiences at the Playhouse productions.

Julius S. Kingsley Dies After Illness Of Several Months

Was Professor of Education And Headed Sociology Department

JOINED FACULTY OF MIDDLEBURY IN 1921

Widely Recognized as An Authority in Pedagogy And Psychology

Prof. Julius S. Kingsley, professor of education and social institutions, died June 30, 1934 after an illness of several months.

Professor Kingsley was called to Middlebury in 1921 as assistant instructor in the department of education, and was made a professor in that department in 1925. In the same year, he was made head of the newly organized Department of Sociology, at the same time retaining his courses in education and contemporary civilization.

Professor Kingsley was born December 5, 1873 in Dundee, New York. He attended the University of Chicago, New York university, and Columbia. He was admitted to the bar in Illinois, and held the degree of A. B., M. S., M. A., Pd. M., and LL. B.

Before coming to Middlebury, he was successively, superintendent of schools in Elmhurst, Chicago, principal of the Covington, Kentucky, high school, and superintendent of schools in Northport, Long Island. During the war he served as superintendent of instructors at the educational corps in the Paris area of the A. E. F.

Mountain Club Will Conduct Pleiad Trip

Fall Hiking Season Starts This Sunday with Initial Visit to Middlebury Gap

The mountain club will make its first trip of the 1934-35 season to Pleiad lodge and vicinity Sunday, September 30.

Club members, in groups of thirty with a member of the club's governing board as the leader of each group, will visit several points of interest through the Middlebury gap on the long trail, including Pleiad lodge, Pleiad lake, Pleiad lookout, Bailey's falls, and Silent cliff.

Free transportation will be furnished to all club members, trucks leaving Battell cottage at 9:45 Sunday morning. Members are requested to bring lunch and drinking cup.

A membership drive, now being conducted by the club, is expected to be completed by chapel time to-morrow. Those wishing to join this organization may secure privilege cards from any member of the club governing board.

Mountain club members may secure equipment free of charge from the club equipment room at 1:30 Friday afternoons.

NOTICE TO FRESHMEN

The Middlebury CAMPUS begins its thirty-second year with this issue. This publication offers a splendid opportunity for journalistic experience to the members of the class of 1938 of both colleges.

A series of editorial tryout meetings begins Friday afternoon at 4:30, in room 9, on the third floor of Old Chapel. Throughout the following weeks until CAMPUS elections in March, an elementary course in college journalism will be offered in the form of lectures and discussion groups. Occasional review quizzes will be given. Details of the instruction covering all phases of the work will be outlined at the initial session.

The CAMPUS has proven to be an activity which keeps its tryouts in constant touch with the life at Middlebury. Freshmen who are interested are urged to begin at once.

Middlebury Joins Editors' Association

Otto W. Prochazka Attends First Meeting of College Journalists' Organization

An organization known as the Association of College Editors was given life September 16 at the Hotel Barclay in New York city when the representatives of thirty colleges, including Middlebury, met in a two-day conference sponsored by the Literary Digest and held for the purpose of founding the association. Middlebury's representative was Otto W. Prochazka '35, editor of the CAMPUS.

The association, known as the "ACE", has as its aim the stimulation of student interest in the promotion of world peace, of good government, and of a higher standard of living. Although acting as host to the assembled editors, the Literary Digest, weekly news magazine, explained through its representatives that it would neither control nor operate the association. The Digest carried out the plan of gathering the student editors after the idea had been conceived by former and present college editors interested in co-ordinating college editorial opinion.

A message of good-will from President Roosevelt gave the newly formed organization a hearty send-off. In his message, sent from Hyde Park to a member of the Digest editorial staff who acted as temporary chairman of the meeting, the President said:

"Will you please convey my best wishes and greetings to the group of young college editors who are meeting to-morrow. The purpose of the conference as explained by you seems to me to be particularly worthwhile and I wish the founders of "ACE" all success in their new undertaking."

John E. Weeks Speaks at Middlebury Night Smoker

Middlebury night in the men's college was held in the form of a smoker Thursday evening at the McCullough gymnasium. Music was furnished by the college band.

Ex-governor John E. Weeks acted as toastmaster. He was introduced by Pres. Paul D. Moody. Judge Weeks told of his boyhood experiences in the vicinity of Middlebury, and pictured the college in its earlier days.

Prof. Harry M. Fife, representing the faculty, addressed the men. In his talk Professor Fife commented upon the friendliness of the college. He termed Middlebury a "cooperative adventure into the realms of good living and high endeavor."

Walter E. Boehm '35 related the progressive development of Middlebury athletics up to the present sports program. Robert T. Stafford '35 described the many other extra-curricular activities.

President Moody Delivers Address At Opening Chapel

One Hundred and Thirty-Fifth Year Formally Inaugurated

COLLEGE BENEFITS LISTED BY SPEAKER

Sense of Vision, Ability to Think and Act Cited As Important

President Paul D. Moody opened the one hundred and thirty-fifth year of Middlebury College at chapel Thursday morning.

Commenting on the Scripture lesson taken from Psalm xc, Dr. Moody noted the coming and going of generations and cited the passage as a cry for immortality in the midst of change.

His address challenged the contributions which the college should be expected to give to her students.

First of all, he stated, was a sense of vision and the ability to see clearly, honestly, and intelligently. The speaker quoted Isaiah xxxiii: 17, "Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty: they shall behold a land of far-reaching distances," as typical of the long views which right seeing brings.

A second important benefit from college, he continued, should be that the individual acquires the ability to think independently. Not by rearranging mental prejudices nor by repetition of other persons' views can we attain intelligent and honest thought, but by forming our own ideas and convictions from the facts before us.

Lastly, the speaker mentioned the ability to act as causing the unconscious development of character. "There are times," he said, "when we must stop thinking and act." Knowing the facts and acting independently, we must realize the social consequences of our conduct, he explained, and give our best intellectual and spiritual gifts in order to receive the fullest enjoyment of college.

Four Members Are Added to Faculty

Vacancies in Departments of Language and Science to Be Filled by Newcomers

Dr. Joseph S. Thomas, of the chemistry department; Mr. Waldo H. Heinricks, of the sociology department; M. Emile V. Telle and Mlle. Marie Delonglee, of the French department; have been added to the faculty of Middlebury College this fall.

Dr. Thomas taught in the summer school at Middlebury from 1927 to 1930 and was an assistant in the graduate school at Harvard during the 1928-1930 sessions. He filled Prof. Perley C. Voter's place during the latter's sabbatical leave. He is now teaching during the absence of Prof. John F. Haller. Dr. Thomas received his B. S. from Bowdoin in 1926, his M. S. from Middlebury in 1928 and his Ph.D. from Harvard in 1934.

Mr. Heinricks received his B. S. from Dennison and his M. A. from Columbia. He was in the aviation service during the world war. He has been connected with the International Y. M. C. A. and has served with that association in Jerusalem during the past few years.

M. Telle received his bachelor's degree from Ohio state university. He has

PROFESSOR KINGSLEY

It will be long before we forget his ready, friendly smile and that happy greeting that was so quick to find his lips. For thirteen years he served Middlebury with everything at his disposal—which was a great deal; and for thirteen years Middlebury loved him. We use the word love because he was of that rare cast that could be taken to the heart for the duration of memory. And now he has passed beyond. To believe that he is gone is difficult—he was so vital. We feel the inadequacy of words when we mourn Professor Julius S. Kingsley, who will never quite be replaced—a great educator and a great personality.

For thirteen years Middlebury loved him in her midst; for many more years Middlebury will love the memory of him. Freshman, you are unfortunate in being the first class to be immeasurably the poorer for being deprived of the influence of our departed friend.

BEGINNING ANOTHER YEAR

These are times of unrest; these are troubled times. A proud and arrogant economic machinery has been stalled. Things in general are pretty much of a shambles, and nobody seems very sure of what should be done. Everybody has been caught in the tumbling debris that was once a solid structure; worker, broker, builder, manufacturer—all have taken their blows.

And our predecessors of the last few years have also taken their knocks. The number of college graduates who have not found a place in one of society's renumerative occupations is a disheartening number. It all seems so discouraging on the surface; why waste our time and money here in college when we'll be none the better off after were out? Of course we'll gain culture, the ability to enjoy the better things, and the ability to get along with our fellows, and so on—we've heard it all many times and we can't dispute its truth. But what of it? What good is all that if one can't eat? No good, of course.

Then why are we here to open another year at this institution of learning? To keep out of the way for a few years at least? To put off the inevitable day when we'll find ourselves turned loose upon a world that doesn't want us? The answer is entirely up to us.

We who are in college now can make our stay here more than worth our time. We must use these years to prepare ourselves for as great an opportunity as was offered to any generation. With our economic system so badly fouled, this generation of ours is on the threshold of what can be made the greatest period of reconstruction ever known to man—whether it be reconstruction on old foundations or reconstruction on new foundations. We must keep our eyes and our minds on the happenings of the day; we must educate ourselves to the task of taking over the wreckage that has been bequeathed to us and shaping the remains to the form of our ideals. Never before has youth had such an opportunity ahead of it—an opportunity to build new mansions for mankind. America is still rich; we have man power natural resources, and productive agents that have been standing criminally idle for years. These things can be used, and to good purpose.

So if we who are in college to-day can train ourselves to take over the command of this great nation with the ideals of youth and humanity as our guides, we can step forth after graduation into our own world and find a real job waiting for us. If we fail to do this it is difficult to forecast the turn things will take. It looks as though the time has come for youth to assert itself and to lead the way, using the well-meant failures of the past as examples of what not to do.

Here and There

On Approach to Chapel

It is with regret that we must announce to freshmen, and to all those who return to these hills with renewed expectation, that the college does not offer this year a course in that most fascinating subject, the fine art of attending chapel.

For the numerous upperclassmen who have contemplated majoring in the department of Social Contacts, and for those newcomers who have had little or no background work in this venerable Middlebury custom, we present here a brief, and we confess, superficial survey of the course; and elementary as it must necessarily be, we sincerely hope that it may serve as a prerequisite for more advance studies in human relationships, and even that it may be of assistance in such seemingly irrelevant fields as Mob Etiquette and Public Walking. It was formerly required that a student entering a class in chapel attendance pass an exam in Punctuality, or how to tell time by fire bells, cow bells, and the bell in the Catholic church, but this idea has been abandoned because of the remarkable improvement in undergraduate intuition in this respect. Let us then plunge directly into the course.

It is assumed that all Middlebury men and women, (even when wearing high heels in a snow storm), are able to walk in a reasonably straight line, in a reasonably erect position, up an incline slope. Purposely we say up, because, you remember, "The descent into Avernus is easy", and at this point we are concerned only with the approach to chapel. Very well, there are then but two factors which demand attention—costume, and the amount of leisure time at hand.

As a supreme example, let us take Sunday vespers. At four thirty the correct approach is meditated and slow, with eyes cast down in contemplation of the treacherously cracked sidewalk, and now and again lifted in reverence to the lonely spire ahead. Naturally, if one has the leisure to arrive at chapel at four thirty, one has had time to dress carefully.

At quarter to five, it is practically essential that one make the ascent in company with three or four comrades, all conversing brightly and laughing merrily for the purpose (a) of putting up a fair fight against the din of the bells in the steeple, and (b) of conveying an air of disinterested abandon to the critical audience on the steps.

And now, at less than five minutes to five, is the moment for the deliberate coup d'etat, to be attempted only by those who are experienced and who are confident of their own striking appearance and immaculate reputation. This is a sweeping surprise entrance, made when everyone else is seated and the congregation has settled into a sort of preparatory silence not yet too deep to prevent its lifting a thousand eyes to pay homage.

Painful though the duty is, we must not neglect the poor unfortunate who always turns up at five after five, and is forced to slink furtively up the aisle behind the choir. This operation is known as the Slip-in afterward, and is invariably caused by some slip-up beforehand. Our only consolation to those in such a plight is that if they keep their eyes directly forward and their chins up, whether or not they are sure that their shoe laces are tied, they may be able to achieve the effect of the aforementioned coup d'etat. Frankly, this is so rarely accomplished that we have no record of such a feat in our recent files.

We trust that this slight skirmish on the surface of a course in chapel, which deserves much deeper consideration, will enable the college to boast that, whatever sins our students may commit within the chapel, they are never guilty of a faulty method of approach.

Women Hold Middlebury Night Program Saturday

Middlebury women, including students, members of the faculty, and wives of faculty members, met informally Saturday night in the Gymnasium for the annual Middlebury night program.

In keeping with the general subject of the evening, "Then and Now", groups from the three upper classes put on stunts showing college life in various periods. The senior skit, "Money Talks," directed by Ruth L. Havard '35, was laid in the Gray shop before and after the depression. Eleanore R. Cobb '36 was responsible for the junior farce depicting the co-ed of 1890 and 1934. M. Lois Bestor '37 arranged a pantomine contrasting fraternity dances of prewar and present times which was presented by the sophomore group.

Fifty upper classmen paraded early in the evening arousing enthusiasm for Monday's athletic meet. Between each act, Dorothy Gray '35 and Josephine Knox '35 led cheers and songs. The freshmen ended the program by a display of old fashioned costumes.

taught for some time in this country, including three years at the University of Nebraska. Last year he was a graduate student at Harvard.

Mlle. Delonglee received her A. B. from the University of Chattanooga and diplomas from the College de la Legion d'Honneur, and L'Ecole de Preparation de Professeurs a L'Etranger. She has taught for four years at the American university, Washington, D. C.

Prof. Charles A. Adams of the department of education has returned after spending his sabbatical absence in Florida and England. Prof. Harry M. Fife of the economics department has also returned from his sabbatical leave during which he and Mrs. Fife traveled around the world.

COLLEGE EDITORS FORM ORGANIZATION

One of the first actions of the association will be the polling of American and Canadian colleges for the purpose of determining clearly the position of the collegians on the subject of world peace. The poll will probably take place early in January.

Schools represented at the conference included four girls' colleges, Vassar, Smith, Wellesley, and Radcliffe; Queens' University, Canada; and the University of Illinois. Eastern men's colleges and universities made up the balance of the attendance. Plans of the association include the gaining of membership from all sections of the United States and Canada.

Francis G. Smith, editor of the Daily Princetonian, was elected to the presidency of the organization. Sectional vice-presidents will be chosen later.

Upperclass Women Win In Freshmen Challenge

The upper classmen answered the challenge flung by the freshmen by narrowly defeating them in three out of five events Monday afternoon on the women's athletic field.

Field hockey was won by the upper classmen 2 to 0, while the freshmen took volley ball with a score of 24 to 23. The tennis doubles matches split even, Eleanor M. Duke '35 and Carol Bloom '37 winning from Eva Niles '37 and Marion Hewes '37 6-4, and Elizabeth H. Loomis '35 and Evelyn D. Poppel '36 losing to Marion Hewes '37 and Valeria Halligan '37 6-4. The archery contest, Jean E. Douglas, '37, Louise E. Hubbard '36, Alice Bassett '37, and Frances M. Chaffee '35 placed in that order.

W. A. A. subscriptions are now being solicited and plans for the various activities are being made.

Universities in Japan have only 35 women students.

Panther Harriers Turn Out For Fall Training Grind

Seventeen prospective hill and dalers answered Coach Brown's call for cross country material this season. Strenuous training is now under way in anticipation of a stiff schedule.

The candidates are Captain Ralph H. Meacham '36, Archibald C. Tilford '36, Malcom E. Gross '36, Kenneth W. MacFadyen '37, Walter E. Brooker '37, Harris E. Wells '36, Watson E. Wordsworth '37, Charles H. Gurnett '37, Albert W. Pollard '37, Kenneth V. Jackman '37, Richard A. Hard '37, Charles C. Mawer '37, Russell C. Norton '35, W. Wyman Smith '35, Nathaniel T. Scott '37, Herbert T. Ellison, Jr. '37, and John A. Macomber '37. Of these, Meacham, Gross, Gurnett and Tilford are letter men.

The team last year won three and lost two races. With the strong sophomore support this year it is expected that the harriers will run undefeated.

Harriet Cook and Frances Whitwell Study Abroad with Delaware Group

Harriet B. Cook '36 and Frances S. Whitwell '36 were among the thirty-four American students, representing seventeen colleges and universities, who sailed for Europe August 25, on the steamship Lafayette.

As members of the Delaware foreign study plan, these undergraduates will spend their junior year at the University of Paris and will live in the private homes of French families. The year abroad, costing from $1,500 to $2,000, is under the supervision of the University of Delaware.

given by Dr. F. N. Seerley at the Playhouse. President and Mrs. Moody held a reception for the women at their home in the evening.

Wednesday the men received instruction in the use of the library. During the morning the women attended a meeting of the student government association followed by an informal talk by Dean Eleanor S. Ross. A tea was given for the freshman women that afternoon by the student government association in Pearsons hall. In the evening the men attended an informal talk by Dean Burt A. Hazeltine which was followed by a reception given by President and Mrs. Moody at their home.

The customary psychological examination was given to the entire class Thursday afternoon.

President Moody Speaks At Vespers

Doctrine of the Incarnation Is Chosen by Speaker as Subject for First Chapel

President Paul D. Moody, the speaker at vespers Sunday, took as his subject the doctrine of the Incarnation.

President Moody illustrated his talk with Christ's question to His disciples, "Whom do ye say that I am?", and Peter's answer, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Then Christ said to him, "Blessed art thou for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven."

"Whom do men say Jesus is?" asked the speaker. "Some," he stated, "say He was a radical, others say He was a philosopher, but as we draw nearer to Him, we feel that He is not what we thought." "If we obtain any closeness of contact with God, He presses this question upon us, and we come to realize that He was neither deceiving himself nor trying to deceive others when He said that He was the Son of God."

President Moody asserted that God is a God of love, not passive love, but active love, and the Incarnation is proof of this; for God does not wait for man to apprach Him, He approaches man. "God came down into Mankind as a man, to walk this earth that we might feel His presence. That is the simple truth of the Incarnation. We never quite lose sight of our own worth when we think of God taking on the flesh of man and walking on earth and life is invested with a new dignity and meaning.

The speaker said that we are taught "to think of God as Jesus Christ and while for some it is difficult to believe that God actually came down in the flesh we will come sooner or later to realize that there can be no other way, for that is the way He has revealed Himself.

"If we cannot," he concluded, "by virtue of our own upbringing or selfisnness, follow Jesus Christ as God, w must follow him as a man, for we, as people, are disciples in his footsteps."

Dr. Samuel B. Booth Will Speak at Sunday Vespers

Dr. Samuel B. Booth of Burlington, bishop of Vermont in the episcopal church, will be the speaker at vespers Sunday.

Bishop Booth, who has been a speaker at Middlebury for many years, received his A. B. from Harvard and his doctorate from the Virginia theological seminary.

After being ordained to the priesthood in 1911, Bishop Booth served as a missionary and, later, as rector of St. Luke's church in Philadelphia. In 1918 he was a chaplain of the American Red Cross at an evacuation hospital in France.

He became assistant at St. Mary's Cathedral in Philadelphia after the armistice.

In 1925 he was consecrated bishop coadjutor of Vermont and five years later was elected bishop of the state.

a good cigarette gives you a lot of pleasure
. . . just about every cigarette smoker knows that—but here are some other facts to keep in mind . . .
For a cigarette to be milder and taste better it must be made of mild, ripe Turkish and home-grown tobaccos.
We wish you could go into the factories and see Chesterfield made. The mild ripe tobacco is cut in long even threads—then packed into the cigarette so as to make Chesterfield draw right and burn evenly.
A good cigarette can give you a lot of pleasure, and we would like for you to try Chesterfield.

Fraternity Rushing Will Start Sunday

Council Alters Regulations Leaving Thursday Night Open for Dancing at Inn

Fraternity rushing will begin Sunday and continue for two weeks. The visiting period will occupy the first week and rushing at the houses the second. Pledge day will be Saturday, October 13.

During the first week fraternity men may visit freshmen in their rooms. On Sunday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday the hours will be from seven in the morning to six at night. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday the time will be from seven in the morning to ten at night. The following Sunday will be a rest day.

Rushing proper will begin October 8 and extend through October 12. During that time first year men will be entertained by fraternities at the houses. The week is divided into three periods.

Period A will begin Monday at 5:30 and end Tuesday at 10:30. The evenings will be divided as follows: dinner from 5:30 to 7:30, first evening date 7:30 to 8:30, second evening date 8:30 to 9:30, and third evening date 9:30 to 10:30.

Period B, from the last date on Tuesday to the lase date on Thursday, will be divided as follows: dinner from 5:30 to 8, first evening date 8 to 9:30, second evening date 9:30 to 11.

Period C, from the last date on Thursday until the last date on Friday will be divided into as many dates as the interfraternity council thinks necessary.

During the first two periods of rushing men must accept one date from each house offering one or refuse them all. During the last period freshmen are free to accept or refuse any date.

Saturday will be pledge day. Formal invitations will be left in the college bookstore before 8:30 and may be accepted any time after chapel. All communication between first year and fraternity men will stop from the last date on Friday evening until after Saturday chapel.

The rushing rules are the same as those used last year except for one minor change. To accommodate those wishing to dance at the inn Thursday night, evening visiting has been shifted to Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Greetings

Varsity Gridmen To Meet Oswego Eleven Saturday At Porter Field

By O. W. Prochaska

With three weeks of intensive training behind it, the Middlebury football team, 1934 model, will swing into action at Porter field Saturday afternoon. An eleven representing Oswego state teachers will play the role of the other fellow in the opener. Very little trouble seems to be in store for the Panthers in Saturday's game, even though illness and injuries have hampered the team considerably and several players who were counted on heavily will not be available for service.

The Blue and White gridiron aggregation compiled a record of commendable quality last fall, listing among its victims Williams, Boston university, and Vermont, and having only one defeat to show, that coming from the powerful Tufts squad. With only four of last season's regulars lost, another successful season seems imminent, providing Coach Beck can keep the morale of the squad at the unusually high pitch it maintained last fall. It is not always easy to keep a winning team in a winning state of mind for two successive seasons even though the manpower may be there; but the Middlebury mentor will be aided in his job by the unquenchable fighting spirit of the two "Middlebury Midgets", "Wally" Boehm and "Dick" Williams, co-captains of the squad.

"Andy" Reid, veteran left end of three varsity years, "Doug" Jocelyn, speedy guard, and "Gene" Hoyt, spirited center, have been lost through graduation, and "Vic" Riccio, last year's captain, will not be on the field, even though he is eligible for another season of play. All other regulars of 1933 will be on hand—Evans, Hoxie, Schafiroff, MacLean, and the backfield of Williams, Boehm, Golembeske, and Zawistoski.

The positions left open will be filled by experienced men—Stafford and Lombardy fighting to replace Riccio, Whitney and Hoffman available for Jocelyn's post, and Forbush filling Reid's shoes. Shafiroff was just as regular at center as was Hoyt, so the latter will not be missed too much.

In addition to the veteran material that will carry the heaviest part of the team's burden, new men will be of assistance, including a number of very promising sophomores. "Dick" Sweet, last season's basketball captain, will be playing his first season, and should be a help at end; Hoffman, star of Coach Nelson's "plebe" team last year, will see plenty of service at guard and tackle; Craig, "Bob" Brown, and Ward seem ready to break in the lineup for at least part-time work.

As a whole the success of the team will depend upon the smile of Dame Fortune. If injuries do not hamper the regulars, a fine season seems to be ahead of the team; but if the first-string men are out of action, the Williams, St. Anselm's, Tufts, and Vermont games may be tough assignments. Speed will be the foundation of the Blue and White attack, with a varied assortment of offensive tricks designed by Coach Beck to make use of Boehm and Williams, the spearheads of the Panther scoring machinery.

Saturday the team will probably go to the field without the services of Hoxie, all-state guard last year. The fast and sturdy lineman is in Porter hospital with a slight case of the grippe. A probable lineup:

Ends: Forbush and Evans; tackles, MacLean or Lombardy and Stafford; guards, Whitney and Hoffman; center, Shairoff; quarterback, Williams; halfbacks, Boehm and Golembeske; fullback, Zawistoski.

Forrest Branch Returns To Coach Panther Line

Forrest P. Branch, varsity line coach last season, has been re-engaged for this fall in the same capacity.

Mr. Branch is Dartmouth '33. While at Hanover he built a splendid record as a football player, starring at end, guard, and center. It was in the last-named position that he gained most recognition, ranking as one of the best pivot men ever to play for the Big Green.

Last season's successful performance on the part of the Panther linemen was due to a great extent to the capable and inspiring work of the likeable young coach, and his return should mean another hard-charging forward wall.

Freshmen Answer First Football Call

Coach Nelson Works with Thirty-Three Candidates As Plebes Open Practice

The first call for freshman football was answered on Friday when thirty-three men reported to Coach Walter J. Nelson. Manager Richard F. Dempewolff, '36 has arranged a four game schedule for the yearlings with the first encounter being with the St. Lawrence university first year men on October 13.

Coach Nelson is assisted this year by Victor J. Riccio, '35 who captained the varsity last season and was selected for the mythical All State eleven. Riccio with three years of varsity tackle play behind him is helping with the line.

The practice sessions so far have been devoted largely to exercises and coaching in the fundamentals of the Warner system as employed by the varsity, with emphasis being placed on grounding the squad in the basic aspects of the game so that what knowledge they do acquire will be firmly founded when they move up to the varsity next season. Many of the men have had little if any experience in organized football previous to this fall so the number of the tryouts indicates nothing as to the quality of the resulting team.

The members of the squad are:

Anderson, Avery, Beebe, Bunnell, Boehm, Brandt, Brousseau, Buskey, Campagna, Chalmers, Cridland, Farrell, Guianarcia, Hallock, Hayward, Hicks, Kent, Leach, Matteson, Nathanson, Powell, Pratt, Rand, Riccio, Richardson, Smith, Stiles, Temple, Watt, Wemple, Weston, Williams, and Winslow.
